

EXPLORING VODUN PRIESTESSES ANGELA MATTOX

Peace Babes. This week's installment of blogs is getting juicy, huh? How ya'll be? I'm havin myself an incredible time decoding my life by exploring what I was trained to be afraid of. Myself.

The more I explore the Orisha, the more I find out about myself. I'm soooo the sharing is caring type 💎💎. Therefore, I am taking notes on this incredibly fascinating topic, publishing my words and exploring my thoughts in waking life. New Age Science describes this term as ludic living and low-key feels like you're consciously living a dream. My research is about to dive deep into priesthood. It's only right you and I discuss 3 key points. Remember, it's not important to agree. The focus is more about exchanging info itself. Not the projection of how this information will be received, per se. Angela, Greek for heavenly messenger. Once I release the message, it's up to you to know what to do with the information. Mmk, let's explore.

Priestess

Mawu is the 1st daughter of Mother Creator, Nana Buluku and the 1st daughter of a matriarchal lineage of a family collective. She leads ceremonies specific to the clan. Including marriages, baptisms and funerals. She's 1 of the important members of a community. Leading women of a village, while her family rules over the kingdom. Taking part in running of markets, their upkeep and organizing. The marketplace focuses on gathering and social centers within the community. When men would go away to war, Queen Mothers would lead prayer ceremonies that all women attended daily to ensure the safe return of their men. The highest priestess is chosen by the Oracle and could come at any moment of their lives. They join their Tribe and peruse spiritual instruction. The Oracle predicts the future, High preist/priestess creating a successful system via their Tribe. Establishing a covenant. Initially, only blood relatives were invited to these kinds of ceremonies. Strangers were forbidden. These days, the rules have changed. New rules allow non family members to enter "the 1st circle of worship". However, strangers are allowed to worship the spirits of standard pantheon only.

Where is Vodun Practiced?

About 1.6 M people follow Vodun in Benin. 41.5% of that population refer to themselves as Christian. Many of the population descending from the freed Brazilian slaves, who settled on the coast near Ouiduah includes the Toga people, who have about 2.5 M followers. The Ewe of Ghana hosts about 1M Vodou followers. 20M practitioners dwell in Ghana. While about 38% of Ghanaians practice traditional religion and about 14M Nigerians practice Vodou.

Vodun, Europeans and Western America

Hella European colonies have attempted to suppress Vodun and other traditional spiritual practices. Since Vodun deities are born to each clan/Tribe/nation, their life missions are centric to maintaining moral, social and political order. With a heavy focus on ancestral foundation. Many of the high preist/priestess born in our current era (Age of Aquarius), lack the full comprehension of the ancestor's journey. However, the evidence is made clear via the blood. Literally. This connection is to assist us with keeping up with our soul mission. There's an annual International Vodun Conference in Ouidah (since 1991). Look forward to Twerk N Tone Intenational destination trips, beginning in 2020.

There are secrets related to who we authentically are, hidden in the Earth, itself. Many American melanin-rich people are tracing their bloodline. The information of their blog addresses the original religion/spiritual practices before anyone was broken away from their families and shipped God knows where. This information can feel heavy. As the blood literally remembers this truth, where the brain may not. Travel is the perfect resource for healing bloodline trauma. I have decided to personally use my travel professional super power to plan hella retreats. The 1st trip is Mt. Shasta, tentatively in late September 2019. Imagine the healin mountains (also known as the largest unpolished crystals of the land), the hosts volcanos, water falls, forests and more paired with a small group of people just as focused on healing their soul as you are. Lemme just say, I can see some major Tribal unification happening during our our trips. This retreat will accommodate less than 20 people, vegan chef preparing fresh food daily, workshops, healing ceremonies, meditation guidance, spiritual stone massages and more. None of these services are free, nor cheap. So, the prices of these adventures will reflect. However, I'm a Mama, so you know I love a good deal. Stay tuned for the details. Thank you for the support.
